DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 25 and 36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 25 and 36, a range must have an upper and a lower limit to be definite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 19 and 21-37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Junod(6,600,452).

Claims 19 and 29, figure 7a discloses a first antenna member(700) with a first conducting element on a printed circuit board(col. 2, line 53), a second conducting element coupled with the first antenna member in a different geometric plane, where the antenna members form a loop for transmission of radio frequency signals relating to activity of a computer pointing device in relation to a computing device(col. 2, lines 1-5), the members coupled with a radio frequency circuit integrated with the printed circuit board to receive the radio frequency signal, and the antenna loop and the printed circuit board enclosed within a housing of the computer pointing device(claim 5).

Claims 21 and 30, the first conducting element(lower element) disclosed in figure 7a is a metallic trace(col. 11, lines 33-37).

Claims 22, 31-32 and 34, the first or second conducting element can be antenna wire(col. 11, lines 43-46).

Claims 23-24 and 33, a portion of the second conducting element is a metal trace structured on a second printed circuit board(col. 11, lines 33-37).

Claims 25 and 36, the antenna disclosed in figure 7a can be used at a frequency of 27MHZ.

Claims 26 and 35, a portion of the second antenna member disclosed in figure 7a of the antenna loop is oriented to lay in a plane substantially parallel to the circuit board.

Claim 27, at least one of the antenna members has a plurality of turns(col. 16, lines 38-39).

Claims 28 and 37, the computer control device is a wireless mouse(col. 2, lines 3-4).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Junod in view of Brown et al.(6,304,232).

Junod does not disclose the conducting element positioned along the perimeter of the pcb.

Claim 20, figure 1 of Brown discloses a conducting element(110) positioned along perimeter edge of a printed circuit board(102) so that the size of the pcb is minimized.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use a pcb the same size as the loop antenna as disclosed in Brown to minimize the size of the antenna so it can fit in a small device.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 19-37 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
